Forty years ago, Charles H. Kramer, MD, and his colleagues started the quest for strengthening and healing families. Today we continue their mission as we carry on the tradition. We are dedicated to providing the highest quality of mental health care possible. The Family Institute is THE place for knowledge and caring families count on.

This annual report covers our growth during fiscal year 2008 (September 1, 2007-August 31, 2008). Highlights of the fiscal year included:

• We opened our fourth clinical office in Northbrook, introducing our services to a new audience and allowing us to build our reputation as the premier center dedicated to couple, individual and family therapy.

• We conducted more than 53,000 therapy sessions to more than 5,000 clients. Fourteen thousand of these hours of therapy were offered on a sliding-fee scale through our Bette D. Harris Family and Child Clinic, with an average fee of $13.

• We graduated 39 students from our two Master’s programs at Northwestern University.

• We presented our research findings and instruments at national and international conferences.

We look to fiscal year 2009 with anticipation and optimism. Extraordinary times offer an opportunity to go back to basics and core strengths. And that’s just what we are doing.

The Family Institute prides itself on the dedication and devotion of its staff, many of whom have been here for more than 20 years. This commitment expresses the quality and value of the work we do.

Thank you for your continued generosity and support of The Family Institute. Our donors, friends, alumni and Board of Directors continually push us to be the best.

We are privileged to lead The Family Institute as it celebrates its 40th Anniversary.

Our core values guide us as we extend our capacity to help greater numbers of people and an enormous array of families.
- The family is the singular most significant factor influencing human identity.
- Family-based therapy is a powerful model for change, one that not only helps people cope with major life issues, but that can ultimately transform how we lead our lives, resulting in healthier communities and societies.
- High-quality mental health care should be available to all who need it, regardless of their financial resources.
- The definition of “family” takes many forms, and is not limited by the boundaries of biology and marriage.

The Alumni Association spent the past year continuing its efforts in supporting alumni, current students and The Family Institute.
- The Alumni Association sponsored a back-to-school kick-off for all Counseling Psychology and Marital and Family Therapy students to give the two programs a chance to meet and to welcome the new first-year students.
- The Marital and Family Therapy Career Guidance Night was held in March 2008 with 10 panelists answering students’ questions about various career paths and job search experiences.
- In April, the Alumni Association held its annual spring social reception at BIN 36 with hors d’oeuvres, as well as a fundraising raffle.

The Alumni Association promotes the intellectual enrichment and professional growth of The Family Institute alumni through educational and social services.
Clinical Service

In February 2008, we opened our fourth location in Northbrook. This location allows us to deliver our services to a new audience. Northbrook also offers great convenience with easy access to the Edens Expressway and ample parking. Growth in clinical service occurred in both the clinic, with an increase of six student therapists over last year, and in the staff practice, where we added eight new clinicians, five affiliates and two new consulting psychiatrists. Through a more streamlined and focused marketing effort, including the marketing of our newest location in Northbrook, we achieved a 20% increase in engaged cases over FY07.

Education

One hundred and one students were enrolled in our two Master’s programs in FY08. Commencement was highlighted with Rev. Jesse Jackson’s speech, touching on all the ways counselors make a difference in our world. He encouraged our graduates to work toward changing inequalities in the world and to collectively counsel our country to greatness.

Master of Science in Marital and Family Therapy Program

CLASS OF 2008

The class of 2008 graduated with a 100% completion rate. The growing strength of the professional identity of the program is evident in the career and doctoral education paths of the class of 2008, and a clear passion and commitment to the profession of Marriage and Family Therapy. Eleven graduates indicated their intentions to enter doctoral programs; four were accepted to top rated MFT PhD programs; one was accepted to a counseling psychology PhD program; one was accepted to a counseling psychology PhD program; and one was accepted to a PsyD program. Also, two MFT graduates were accepted into The Family Institute’s post-graduate fellow program.

Admissions

The incoming class of 2010 includes 27 students with a mean GRE score of 1125 and an overall GPA of 3.5. This class, comprised of two males and 25 females, includes 18 in-state students and nine out-of-state students. One student is from Germany. Their mean age is 27.

Curriculum

The Family Institute added four additional in-house training positions for Counseling Psychology students, bringing the total to 12 students. Accompanying this was an increase in the number of Counseling Psychology students beginning their training in June rather than September and the addition of a Summer Quarter introductory course in counseling methods for those beginning their training in the Summer Quarter. The new schedule and new introductory course proved to be highly successful for all involved.

Interesting tidbit

The class of 2009 submitted and received a grant of $2,000 on multicultural awareness and competency. Being retooled by the program director with a strong emphasis on multicultural awareness and competency.

Community Outreach

The Community Outreach program takes the expertise of The Family Institute to neighborhoods where little or no mental health care exists. The program operates at public schools and community organizations in the Chicago neighborhoods of Cabrini Green/West Town, Bronzeville and Logan Square, and in Evanston. Services offered include individual and family therapy, support and social skills groups, workshops, and consultations. All services are provided free of charge.

Research

Our research team had a very productive 2008. Here are some of the highlights:

- Our Psychotherapy Change project completed its study naming the Systemic Therapy Inventory of Change (STIC®) measure. This study involved comparing a sample of clinical participants with a non-clinical random sample of participants that was representative of the population of the United States at the last census. This comparison resulted in the derivation of clinical cut-off scores for each of the STIC® scales. These scores were incorporated into a newly developed STIC® website.

By incorporating the norms with the clinical data, the new website is much more meaningful to clinicians as a therapist can now tell if their patient’s responses are in the clinical or normal range on the various scales.

- We also completed the “Here’s the STIC®” paper, which introduces the STIC® to the psychotherapy research world. The manuscript was accepted by the journal Psychotherapy Research.

- The Depression and Couples project continues its work. The project has completed data collection with a total of 100 couples enrolled, and Dr. Lynne Knobloch-Fedders, along with a team of 18 undergraduate and graduate students from Northwestern University, is now in the process of analyzing the data for publication.

- The Generalized Anxiety Disorder (GAD) and Couples project received a generous donation of $300,000 from an anonymous donor. Rick Zinbarg, PhD, has submitted a proposal to NIMH and received a high priority score. The GAD project has resulted in numerous national and international presentations.

- The Parental Depression, Parental Conflict and the Social-Emotional Functioning of Young Children project, led by Emily Durbin, PhD, has completed data collection. Dr. Durbin and her team will spend the upcoming year analyzing the data for publication.

Noteworthy Changes

- Rick Zinbarg, PhD, was promoted to full Professor in the Department of Psychology at Northwestern University.

- Lynne Knobloch-Fedders, PhD, became the Assistant Director of Research at The Family Institute.

- Anthony Chambers, PhD, joined The Family Institute staff as Research Program Coordinator and was promoted to Assistant Clinical Professor in the Department of Psychology at Northwestern University.

- Kate Goddaheter, PhD, joined The Family Institute as the Morgan Postdoctoral Fellow, and is working primarily on the Psychotherapy Change project.
