

The Family Institute of Chicago is established at the Oak Park home of Dr. Charles Kramer

1968

The Family & Child Clinic started with seven student therapists treating 60 families in the first year

1979

The Family Institute formally affiliated with Northwestern University

1990

Master of Arts in Counseling Psychology program integrated into educational offerings

2002

Counseling program expanded to a new online platform Counseling@Northwestern

2015

The Family Institute at Northwestern University celebrates 50 years of partnering to see change

2019

Launched teletherapy within the clinical practice

2018

2,000 therapy sessions annually

80,000 therapy sessions annually

The Family Institute of Chicago is officially incorporated as a not-for-profit organization

1969

Four students matriculated into new Master of Science in Marital & Family Therapy program

1991

Following a $4.7 million capital campaign, The Family Institute opened its new headquarters, the Bette D. Harris Center on Northwestern University's campus in Evanston

1994

The Center for Family Studies is formed when The Family Institute merged with Northwestern Memorial Hospital's Institute of Psychiatry

1975

The affiliation with Northwestern University is strengthened with the formation of a new umbrella for academic and research collaboration

2000

Northwestern

The Center for Applied Psychological and Family Studies

THE FAMILY INSTITUTE

at Northwestern University

OF PARTNERING TO SEE CHANGE

THE FAMILY INSTITUTE

at Northwestern University

50 years ago,

at his Oak Park home, Charles H. Kramer, M.D. brought together a group of psychiatrists, therapists and social workers for a monthly study group about the growing field of family therapy. Demand of this group for training and consultation grew rapidly and as a result The Family Institute was born.

Over the last half century, The Family Institute has grown into a nationally and internationally recognized incubator for systemic thinking as a key component of any therapy.

Thousands of publications from The Family Institute over the last five decades have propelled the theory and practice of how relationships dramatically impact a person's wellbeing.

We have strengthened and healed families, couples and individuals from all walks of life through a high-quality system of care that gets results.

In 50 years, The Family Institute has grown from 2,000 therapy sessions in year one to more than 80,000 sessions of care annually. We have gone from sharing what we know with a handful of experimental therapists to preparing more than 500 graduate level students at a world-class university for meaningful and impactful careers in behavioral health.