2007 Annual Report

Knowledge and caring families count on.

Northwestern University is to strengthen and heal families from all walks of life through clinical service, community outreach, education and research.

Dear Friends,

The Family Institute at Northwestern University is the premier provider of cutting-edge, family-oriented mental health services in the Chicago metropolitan area.

Fiscal year 2007 represented many changes and accomplishments for The Family Institute. We updated our mission statement to reconfirm our commitment of reaching out to people who would normally never access our services. It now reads:

The mission of The Family Institute at Northwestern University is to strengthen and heal families from all walks of life through clinical service, community outreach, education and research.

2007 was an exciting year of growth and expansion for us.

- We expanded our downtown location with additional office space for clinical staff and our advancement/external relations team.
- A psychological assessment program was established, deepening our dedication to understanding children and adults in the context of their families.
- We saw yet another increase in cases and clients, and conducted 50,000 treatment sessions.
- Hours of service to children and families in underserved and under-resourced communities through our Community Outreach program increased as we expanded our services in the Logan Square, Bronzeville, Evanston and Cabrini Green neighborhoods.

Our research team continues to thrive. Thanks to a major gift from the A.C. Nielsen family, our STIC^{*} (Systemic Therapy Inventory of Change) norming project is complete. These data will allow us to rapidly determine the unique problem areas with each case and to evaluate progress in those areas over the course of therapy. We continued research on anxiety, depression and marriage. The results of these studies will not only help us but the wider fields of family psychology and family therapy as well.

Education remains a core pillar of our mission. We are fortunate to teach some of the brightest therapists of tomorrow. In June 2007, we graduated 40 new therapists from our two Master's programs with Northwestern University in Marital and Family Therapy and Counseling Psychology, and were honored to have Scott Turow speak at our Commencement.

William M. Pinsof, PhD President

Robert F. Lipman Chair, Board of Directors

We have started to systematically work toward our Board-approved strategic plan, looking to expand our reach throughout the world of psychotherapy, making The Family Institute the premier institution for the best family-oriented mental health care.

We again relied heavily on philanthropic support from our friends, alumni, foundations and corporations, allowing us to make significant progress toward our ambitious goals.

Thank you to the alumni for their ongoing support of The Family Institute. You carry forward into the profession our dedication to strengthen and heal families.

Thank you to our Board of Directors. Your support and encouragement move us to strive to be our best. Welcome to our new members. With your leadership, we look to the future and see nothing but endless possibilities. 2007 marked our strongest Board year yet.

Thank you to all our donors for your commitment to The Family Institute. We could not do our work without you.

Next year, The Family Institute turns 40. We are poised to celebrate this momentous occasion with all of our friends.

Clinical Research

The Family Institute conducts important research in affiliation with Northwestern University that leads to a better understanding of mental health issues and improved treatments.

What we believe

Our core values guide us as we extend our capacity to help greater numbers of people and an enormous diversity of families.

- The family is the singular most significant factor influencing human identity.
- Family-based therapy is a powerful model for change, one that not only helps people cope with major life issues but that can ultimately transform how we lead our lives, resulting in healthier communities and societies.

Northwestern University Affiliation

Through a unique affiliation, The Family Institute is integrally linked with one of the nation's most prestigious institutions of higher learning, Northwestern University. This relationship permits The Family Institute to remain an independent, not-for-profit organization — with its own governance, programmatic and funding autonomy — while benefitting from the academic richness of a major research university. Under the partnership, The Family Institute operates the University's Center for Applied Psychological and Family Studies in cooperation with Northwestern's Graduate School and Office of Research. Graduate education and research activities at The Family Institute are conducted under the auspices of the Center. The affiliation also provides faculty appointments, through Northwestern's Department of Psychology, for Family Institute staff members who teach in the two graduate programs.

Postgraduate Fellowships

Clinical and research fellowships for mental health professionals who have completed Master's or Doctoral degrees are conducted at The Family Institute.

Doctoral-Level Students & Psychiatry Residents Clinical Training

The Family Institute is a training site for clinical psychology doctoral students studying at Northwestern University's Department of Psychology and for psychiatry residents enrolled in Northwestern University's Feinberg School of Medicine.

Continuing Education for Mental Health Professionals

The Family Institute offers continuing professional education annually through workshops, seminars, conferences and clinical consultation.

- High-quality mental health care should be available to all who need it, regardless of their financial resources.
- The definition of "family" takes many forms, and is not limited by the boundaries of biology and marriage.

Clinical Service

Growth in Clinical Service occurred in both the clinic, where there was an increase of six student therapists over last year, and in the staff practice, where we added eight new clinicians, five affiliates and two new consulting psychiatrists.

Through an extensive Clinical Service marketing endeavor, we achieved a 12% increase in staff volume of cases and a 7% increase in clinic volume of cases over 2006, with a 45% increase among fellows and 30% for affiliates. In addition, intake (where all cases begin) handled an increased volume and met the challenge of conducting all intakes within 24 hours.

The Clinical Records Audit Task Force has completed implementation of the chart audit process and legal/clinical review of all clinical, chart and intake forms.

Clinical Service also standardized and revised emergency on-call procedures while updating clinical policies and procedures.

Community Outreach

Launched in 1989, Community Outreach offers familyoriented psychotherapy to clients who face financial and geographic barriers to receiving services. Funded by gifts from foundations, businesses and individual donors, this program helps families use their strengths to cope with challenging life experiences, emotional and behavioral difficulties, as well as economic and social obstacles. In 2006, we provided more than 7,000 hours of service to more than 600 participants across our 13 community sites.

ADMISSIONS

The class of 2009 includes 23 students, 19 of which are from out-of-state, five are international students and one Native American. Eight of these students are entering their second careers.

CURRICULUM

All zero credit courses were converted to one credit. As a result of this conversion, the number of required credit units increased to 24, putting us in full compliance with Illinois and most state Counselor licensing statutes.

Psychiatric Residency

The Psychiatry Residents from Northwestern Medical School have completed three rotations with The Family Institute and saw clients in the downtown office.

Postgraduate Fellows

Our fellows increased in visibility around The Family Institute, in addition to deepening their sense of community in several ways.

Research

Our path-breaking STIC[®] (Systemic Therapy Inventory of Change) research continued, which will allow us to track changes over the course of therapy. In addition, our data collection for the National Opinion Research Center at the University of Chicago (NORC) project was completed, giving us a set of national norms for the instrument. We have a total of over 1,300 NORC STIC[®]s.

In terms of the STIC^{*} clinical, we saw 155 new cases and a total of 2,278 intersessions. This is an increase from FY2006, where we saw 143 new cases and a total of 1,586 intersessions.

We have collaborated with The Family Institute at Pinole, Calif., as an additional data collection site for the STIC.[®] This organization primarily sees children and families, two populations we have struggled to get, filling an important void for the STIC[®] project. Thus far, they have a total of 6 new cases and 14 intersessions.

We have furthered our STIC^{*} collaboration with Purdue University by creating a unique space on our website for their cases. They have a total of 16 new cases and 106 intersessions.

Refinement/Projects/Papers Submitted

Our research group wrote 18 journal articles and seven book chapters during FY2007.

- Two members were published this year: Jay Lebow, PhD, wrote "Research for the Psychotherapist: From Science to Practice" and Rick Zinbarg, PhD, was first author on the new edition of "Therapist's Guide for the Mastery of Your Anxiety and Worry Program."
- The "Here's the STIC" paper, which will introduce the STIC" to the psychotherapy research world, is complete and was submitted. The co-authors are: William Pinsof, PhD, Jay Lebow, PhD, Rick Zinbarg, PhD, Lynne Knobloch-Fedders, PhD, Anthony Chambers, PhD and Eli Karam, PhD.
- Anthony Chambers, PhD, submitted a manuscript titled, "Relationship functioning during the transition to fatherhood," and is awaiting feedback from the journal.

Noteworthy Changes

• Anthony Chambers, PhD, completed his 2-year Morgan Clinical Research Postdoctoral Fellowship and was hired as a full-time staff member and Research Program Coordinator.

• Lynne Knobloch-Fedders, PhD, is the new Assistant Director of Research.

 Rick Zinbarg, PhD, became the new Director of Clinical Training for the Psychology Department, strengthening The Family Institute's critical link with the Psychology Department.

• Danielle Black, PhD, joined us as the new Madigan Family Postdoctoral Fellow.

Niche Program

ASSESSMENT SERVICES

Initiated in September 2006, the mission of the assessment program is to establish ongoing services in psychological and neuropsychological testing. Its purpose is to highlight how cognitive and neurological functioning affects learning, memory, behavior or mood, and to make recommendations to the therapist, individual and/or parents and school to aid in treatment or in learning.

Alumni

The Alumni Association promotes the intellectual enrichment and professional growth of The Family Institute alumni though educational and social services. We had quite a busy year, continuing existing programs and adding new ones.

Service to the Alumni

In April, we hosted our annual social networking event at BIN 36 in Chicago. More than 50 alumni, faculty and supervisors attended and had the chance to catch up with old friends and network with other alumni, while enjoying an evening of wine and cheese. We also held a raffle to raise money for the Alumni Scholarship Fund. The event raised almost 40% more than last year, and the winners walked away with some great prizes.

Service to the Students

We continued the Marital and Family Therapy and Counseling Psychology Alumni Mentor Programs, in which alumni offer their time and expertise to the students who are approaching graduation. Alumni connect with students as a guide for job searching, career paths and professional development.

In addition, the Alumni Association hosted a Career Guidance Night for Marital and Family Therapy graduate students to learn more about the various career tracks that are available to them. A variety of alumni shared their experiences at various stages in their careers.

Service to The Family Institute

The Alumni Association played a large role in raising money for scholarship funds. For the first time, The Family Institute participated in Bloomingdale's annual Shopping Benefit event. Alumni assisted in the buying and selling of tickets for the event. The money raised was donated to the scholarship fund for deserving students pursuing a Master's degree at The Family Institute. The Alumni Association membership includes anyone who has completed any of the following programs:

- PhD or Master of Arts in Counseling Psychology from Northwestern University
- Master of Science in Marital and Family Therapy from Northwestern University
- Postgraduate Training Program at The Family Institute
- Postgraduate Fellowship at The Family Institute
- Clinical Practicum at The Family Institute
- Chemical Dependency Training at The Family Institute
